

Bruce Panter

Bruce Panter is the Business Banking manager for Wells Fargo. Panter had been with Wells Fargo for 31 years in Denver, Montrose and Colorado Springs, helping businesses access capital and managing their cash flow. His Colorado Springs/Pueblo team consists of 11 bankers dedicated to helping their customers succeed and manage their risk.

Panter graduated Magna Cum Laude from the University of Colorado, Boulder with a degree in business administration. In 2007, he graduated from the Pacific Coast Banking School in Seattle, Washington.

Community involvement is important to Panter. He currently holds leadership positions with the Colorado Springs Regional Business Alliance Finance Committee, Board Membership with the Colorado Procurement Technical Assistance Center (PTAC), and a Board Membership with the Colorado Springs Economic Forum. Previously he chaired the Board for the Montrose Economic Development Corporation, was a board member for Montrose Chamber of Commerce, Montrose Merchant Associations and Community Options in Montrose.

Bruce and his wife, Beth enjoy hiking, mountain climbing, biking, skiing and everything else this outdoor paradise called Colorado provides. They have 5, now adult, children.
